Vatican rejects doctrine that justified colonisation

Statement said Doctrine of Discovery did not reflect equal dignity and rights of the Indigenous and is not an expression of Catholic faith

VATICAN CITY: The Vatican on Thursday responded to Indigenous demands and formally repudiated the "Doctrine of Discovery," the theories backed by 15th-century "papal bulls" that legitimised the colonialera seizure of Native lands and form the basis of some property law today.

A Vatican statement said the papal bulls, or decrees, "did not adequately reflect the equal dignity and rights of Indigebeen considered expressions of the Catholic faith.

The statement, from the Vatican's development and education offices, marked a historic recognition of the Vatican's own complicity in colonial-era abuses committed by European kingdoms, and Indigenous leaders welcomed it. It continued to take some distance from any actual Vatican culpability, however, saying the papal documents had been "manipulated" for political purposes by coloacts against Indigenous peoples that were carried out, at times, without opposition from ecclesial authorities."

It said it was right to "recognise these errors," acknowledge the terrible effects of colonial-era assimilation policies on Indigenous peoples and ask for their forgiveness.

The statement was a response to decades of Indigenous demands for the Vatican to formally rescind the papal bulls that provided the Portuguese and Spanish kingdoms the religious backing to expand their territories in Africa and the Americas for the sake of spreading Christianity. Those decrees underpin the gal concept coined in a 1823 US Supreme Court decision that has come to be understood as meaning that ownership and sovereignty over land passed to Europeans because they "discovered" it.

The protesters were escorted away and Mass proceeded normally though the women later marched the banner out of the basilica and
